Research Associate

Handmade in India

Conducted primary on field & library research on the handicraft traditions in the states of Orissa, Jharkhand and Delhi for a government funded project "Handmade in India". The writings are to be compiled in a 3 volume encyclopedia. The project is the largest project till date documenting the craft traditions in all the 28 states and 7 union territories of India.

The writings and research is supported by detailed photographic documentation. The main guidelines for research were:

- Identifying craftsmen: Travelling extensively to remote villages and habitation to identify master craftsmen.
- Demographic study: Larger context of the craft including the demography of the place, history, climate and culture of the inhabitants where the craft is practiced.
- Craft: It's origin, raw materials & tools and detailed process of craft.
- Products: History and socio-religious context of the craft, analysis of traditional vs. contemporary products.
- Sociological & Anthropological study of the tribe or caste practicing the craft.
- Patronage and market analysis of the craft and its products.
- Analysis of the future of the craft and possible means of restoring its status.

Research Associate & Digital Restorer

The Paintings of India

Worked as an associate researcher on a series of 26 documentary films "The Paintings of India" of 30 minute each that were broadcasted at prime time on the National channel. The films were directed by a world renowned photographer Mr. Benoy K Behl and the author of "The Ajanta Caves".

The films traced the rich painting tradition of India from the prehistoric to the modern times.

The project is till date the largest visual documentation of the paintings of India ever compiled in a single project and has earned an entry in the Limca Book of Records for the same. The project is also being considered by The Guinness Book of World Records for its extensive research and the most elaborate documentary ever produced on the subject.

During the course of my work with Mr. Behl, I worked on digital restorations of 6th century Buddhist murals paintings from the caves of Ajanta. The restored paintings were shown in the film series to represent how the paintings would have looked in the 6th century when they were created.

I was also entrusted with organizing numerous exhibitions of photographs of Mr. Behl which toured in many states in India and also in many Asian countries. Some of the exhibitions that I managed and installed were:

- ° Ajanta: The Unseen Jewel Photographed by Benoy K Behl held in National Museum, New Delhi
- ° The Path of Compassion: Buddhist Monuments and Art Heritage. The exhibition was organized with collaboration with Archaeological Survey of India. The exhibition took place in Taj Mahal, Agra and Hotel Ashok, New Delhi in India and 10 Asian countries, including Bhutan, Japan, Sri Lanka & Thailand.
- ° Velha Goa: Photographs by Benoy K Behl. The exhibition was sponsored by the Portuguese Embassy, New Delhi and was held in New Delhi and Goa.

Curator

Amreekan Curry

Curated a travelling exhibition of prints by faculty and graduate students at the University of Tennessee, Knoxville. The exhibition was held in New Delhi and Vadodara, Gujarat, India. The exhibition was sponsored by the University of Tennessee, Knoxville; U.S. Embassy, New Delhi and India Habitat Center, New Delhi. A 24 page color catalog was produced in conjunction to the exhibition with support from the U.S. Embassy, New Delhi.

I also headed a delegation of 9 from the Universities of Tennessee and Iowa to India and organized their travel to 4 different states giving lectures, presentations and visiting various art and cultural centers.

The exhibition was a part of series of lectures and presentation by faculty and students and was an initiating step to develop student exchange programs between the Universities in India and Universities of Tennessee & Iowa.

Perfect with Pixel

'Perfect with Pixel' is a print exhibition curated in response to criticism against the use of digital technology in the realm of art; and the discussion about the missing physical 'mark' — especially the absence of the 'aura' in the work. This exhibition is a collection of artworks that have been perfected through a combination of traditional and digital methods, bringing the best of two worlds together. The exhibition consisted of more than 130 works by 94 invited and juried international artists and provides a fascinating display of creativity and ingenuity illustrating the versatility of digital technology.

The exhibition was sponsored by BGSU School of Art, BGSU Galleries and Ohio Arts Council.

Contemporary India

'Contemporary India' is a multi media exhibition of works by 10 artists from India, and those of Indian origin, that have a clear hint of a free mind that seeks change, responding to the real-life truths experienced by all Indian artists. The exhibition, at the same time, suggest loyal psyches that cling to the inherent shared collective identity of Indian culture, values, and philosophy, and hence showcases works that have a prominent and unmistakable mark of contemporary India, its past aura, present oxymoranic glory, gleeful anticipation of and reservations about the future. A 40 page catalog was published for the exhibition which included a curatorial statement written by myself.

Ms. Anupam Sud, a highly accomplished artist and distinguished retired professor was invited from New Delhi, INDIA for a period of 10 days to BGSU. Ms. Sud presented her work in a public lecture during the opening reception and participated in individual and group critiques with graduate students and numerous printmaking and drawing classes. Events for the exhibition also included cultural dance performances by the Hindu Temple of Greater Toledo and talks by Dr. Kristen Rudisill and Professor Rajorshi Ghosh

The exhibition was sponsored by Ohio Arts Council; Ethnic Cultural Arts Program (ECAP), BGSU Galleries, School of Art, College of Arts & Sciences, Department of Popular Culture and the Medici Circle at Bowling Green State University, OH
